

Woodland Creation and Management

This 5-day course has been designed for people considering a change of career, have an interest in woodland management or those who are seeking to build and diversify their skills in forestry. This practical training is eligible for grant funding from the 'Forestry and Arb training fund'.

As of June 2024, further funding has been made available to those on the waiting list.

If you had previously applied, you should hear directly.

If not, contact enquiries@forestryandarbtrainingfund.co.uk

The fund for new applications will be open in Summer 2024.

Course focuses

- Woodland management: silvicultural practices; people, processes and industry
- Woodland ecology
- Woodland assessment: tree surveying and measuring
- Site and species selection
- Preparation, planting and establishing woodlands
- Ancient woodland restoration

What will you receive?

All delegates will be provided with digital access to the full suite of materials and a certificate upon completion.

The tutors

This course is run by our dedicated industry experts. This includes:

- Cora Pfarre, Head Forester. Cora completed her Master's degree in Forest Science at the Technical University Dresden (Germany) in 2014. During her MSc studies, Cora worked at the Institute for Wildlife, Ecology and Game Management as a tutor.
- David Cook, Head of Training and Education, will host your week and ensure the highest standard possible for your learning experience.

Training centre

The training will consist of a blend of classroom and on-site woodland activities.

All refreshments and lunch will be provided.

Cost

£1500+vat per person.

For those in receipt of the Forestry Training Fund grant, the course fee is fully covered.

Contact and booking details

To book please contact us:

 0800 157 7707

 info@maydencroft.co.uk